

9. The New England Patriots have won six of their last seven home games. They're playing at home on Sunday. Don't bet against them.

▲ 10. You're going out with a Georgette? Well, don't expect much because I've known three Georgettes and all of them have been stuck up, spoiled yuck-heads. I'll bet this one will be a yuckhead, too.

Exercise 11-3

Go through the preceding exercise and for each item identify (1) the sample, (2) the target or implied target class or population, and (3) the feature or property in question.

Exercise 11-4

In groups (or individually, if the instructor prefers) decide whether each of the following comments is (a) an analogical argument or (b) an analogy that isn't in an argument.

- ▲ 1. These shrubs look rather similar to privet. I bet they keep their leaves in the winter, just like privet.
2. Working in this office is just about exactly as much fun as driving in Florida without air conditioning.
3. The last version of Word was filled with bugs; that's why I know the new version will be the same way.
- ▲ 4. If you ask me, Dr. Walker has as much personality as a piece of paving concrete.
5. I hate math, and soon as I saw all those formulas and junk, I knew I'd hate this symbolic logic stuff too.
6. Your new boyfriend has been married five times?! Say—do you seriously think it'll work out better the next time?
- ▲ 7. Too much sun will make your face all wrinkly; I suppose it would have that effect on your hands, too.
8. A CEO who had sex with an intern would be fired on the spot. A senior officer who slept with a recruit would be court-martialed. That's why Bill Clinton should have been impeached.
9. I go, "Mom, don't buy me any more Levi's"; and she's like, "What?" So I told her, "they're for people your age," and she's like, "Well, I'll just give them to your sister"; and so I told her you're just like me and you won't want them either.
- ▲ 10. Here, you can use your screwdriver just like a chisel, if you want. Just give it a good whack with this hammer.